GIANTS STAGE COMEBACK BY DEFEAT CINCY

Jesse Barnes on Slab Pitches Wonderful Ball and League Leaders Are Shutout, 4-0.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The bright hope of the Reds of taking the entire series of three games from the Giants was shattered today when Jesse Barnes, pitching wonder ball in the final game of the set, shut out the league leaders, by 4 to 0.

Whether, though unsteady and not quite so effective as his opponent, would also have secured a shutout but for the slow and inferior playing of Bressler in left and Neale in right, both of whom had disastrous off days. The overights of these two gardeners gave the Giants all four of their runs.

Record Attendance.
The game was witnessed by nearly 22,000 people, the largest crowd by several thousand that ever saw a contest at Redland field, and the attendance record for the national league this year.

The park was jammed before 1 o'clock and the gates were closed 10 minutes before 2, with several thousand fans clamoring vainly for admission. The crowd was dense back of the home plate, down both the foul lines and in both right and left fields, so that ground rules were adopted allowing three bases on a hit into the throng in right and two bases on a drive to left. ## PEORIA AND TOTS GET EVEN BREAK

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 4.—Peoria and Terre Haute divided their double header today. The locals won the opener, 7 to 1. The Tots took the second, 8 to 0. Opportune hitting and fine support in the field gave Peoria its victory. Manager Mordecai Brown pitched his team to victory in the second game. He was never in danger. Score:

RUBE GOLDBERG'S BOOBS—THEY ALL FLOP SOONER OR LATER.

SOX WELCOME DAY OF REST IN HUB TOWN

Gleason Expects Easier Sailing During Rest of the Jaunt Through the East.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 5.—A day of rest here for Bill Gleason's White Sox tribe probably did more good than another victory could have done, because a day of rest on a Sunday in Boston is a day of rest, with the accent on the "day". In fact, to many it seemed like two or three days of rest. A fellow can rest so much here in one Sunday that he gets tired. However, it was just what a majority of Gleason's players needed. Nothing can do more good to lame legs, sprained ankles, charleyhorses, and sore feet than a Sunday in Boston.

By supper time, practically every injured athlete on the Sox squad was able to make the dining room without a limp. This means the boys should have plenty of old "paw" when they tackle the world's champion Red Sox in the final game here today. The fact that the Sox have broken even in six games in the east, despite their crippled condition, indicates what is likely to happen when all injuries are healed.

Boas Gleason still is lamenting that he didn't get Carl Mays or some other high class pitcher to add to his staff, but he always winds up such lamentations with the words, "But we will win that old pennant just the same."

Gleason still has scouts on the job, looking at pitchers of promise. One of them, a sterling young hurler of a class AA league, is being watched right now and may be one of the Sox before next Sunday. Until the deal is made, his name must be kept a secret.

After the game here today, the balance of the eastern jaunt should be a bit easier, for it has a series at Philadelphia and one at Washington. Just to be well prepared to meet Connie Mack's trailers, however, Gleason dispatched Eddie Cicotte and Claude Williams to the Quaker City last night, twenty-four hours ahead of the team, so they will have a night of rest before the series there begins. It is likely that Chick Gandil will join the team there, but he may require a day or two of light practice before entering battle.

ROCKS TAKE CLOSE GAME WITH DUNNS

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 4.—Rockford won from Bloomington yesterday in the ninth, 2 to 1, when Pettigrew singled, Coltrin fumbled and Shallenberger's grounder and thrower singled to right center, scoring Pettigrew. Score:

ONE BRITISH CHAMP LOSES HIS PRESTIGE, BUT NEW STAR LOOMS

BY N. E. BROWN.

Although Pal Moore and Joe Lynch, two of our busy little American scrappers, failed to knock Jimmy Wilde of England loose from his title as world's champion, they bungled several black eyes on his popularity with his home country folk. Jimmy had played jazz music with his mitts on the maps—and other portions of the English and French borders he met prior to the battle royal in Europe, and English ring fans looked on Wilde as being head and shoulders above the crowd despite the fact that he's just about as big as the average newboy.

Well, they figured that Jimmy would boost his stock when he met the American lads. Englishmen looked for Wilde to outclass the U. S. lads though somewhat outweighed.

But Joe Lynch gave him a run for his money in a twenty-round battle early this year. In fact, many critics at the ring said that the English system of scoring points and not the class shown by Wilde, brought him the referee's decision.

Then Wilde took on Pal Moran, a four-round bout, Moore beat him—English system and all. Wilde's friends banked after a return match, and so did Jimmy.

When it was pulled off the other night Wilde was lucky to get the decision. Moore, after the fourth round, had the better of the argument. Wilde was exhausted and Moore fairly fresh. Wilde's clever defense saved him from being knocked out—and gave him points enough to get the decision.

To see his little champ handled so roughly has opened the eyes of the British ring bugs. They still think he is a great boy but it's a good bet the hero worship has dwindled.

As Wilde's star starts on the descent, look at Joe Beckett's going up. Just now he stands the same with English fans as Jack Dempsey does with our bunch here in America which is some high.

Beckett jumped into the limelight about the way Jack did. He's cut out like Jack, too, and the similarity in their careers, build and style, is remarkable. As to their respective classes—take your pick.

Beckett had fought a few bouts before the war but hadn't any clamor. Then a little while ago he got a match with Frank Goddard. Goddard was it just then. Ring followers likened him to Jim Jeffries because of his huge size and strength. They said of him what some thought of Willard—that nobody was around who could sting him. "Bring on the next victim!" his friends said.

Beckett asked for a chance and got it. He knocked Goddard into the shape Willard was left in the ring at Toledo and took just two rounds to do it.

His countrymen figure there isn't anyone who stands a chance with him outside of Dempsey.

Beckett's going to tackle Georges Carpentier late this summer but the Britisher's friends say it will be a workout for Joe.

So, although Wilde has disappeared then the English bugs still have a ring idol to worship.

GRID INTEREST IS HIGH AT ANNAPOLIS

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 4.—The new fourth class at the naval academy, with more than seven hundred members, is being looked over for athletic material with more than the usual interest.

In particular, football, which is next on the program, is expected to be strengthened by the recruits from the new class.

The players who come to the naval academy are mostly preparatory and high school players, though occasionally an old college or university player is among them. West Point is far more likely to catch these stars, because the maximum entering age is two years higher than here.

The academy is somewhat disappointed because the new material runs rather to line men than to backs. Coach Doble lost all of his regular backfield men this year through graduation, and his substitutes are not generally of the type he likes to build his attack around—big, powerful players, who are at the same time keen and active. Most of the big men who have played football and will be available this season have done their playing in the line.

One man who has been especially noted may turn out to be of the Doble type of back. He is Woodward, a six-footer who weighs 195 pounds. He has had considerable experience, as he played behind the line at Washburn.
